“

I arrived in Dubai in 2013 for a gap year and returned to France to complete my M2. Following my final internship in Paris, I declined two offers to return to Dubai and take my chances in 2016. I initially joined Chalhoub for a few months and later seized an opportunity at Piaget. As a Marketing Coordinator, I joined a motivated team of four with a goal to transform the brand's positioning. My responsibilities covered various marketing tasks, from photoshoots and communication to trade marketing, event coordination, and visual merchandising. This diverse role enabled me to learn extensively across marketing disciplines and helped me discover my passion for visual merchandising.

Subsequently, I progressed to become a VM Executive overseeing all boutiques in the Middle East. Building on over three years of experience within Piaget, I transitioned internally to our sister company, Cartier. In my current role as VM Manager for the Middle East and Africa, I lead a team of two, focusing on visual merchandising strategies.

The subjects and content of the learning programme in Caen gave me the knowledge and insights to build a strong foundation for various roles in marketing and communication teams across different companies. The double diploma (between Normandy and the UK) encouraged me to explore opportunities abroad, shaping my outlook and personality to seek challenges in new countries and markets, ultimately making me a truly global citizen.

I started my career in Europe, then moved to Asia, and now work in the Middle East with global companies such as Deloitte, WPP, and Omnicom. Today, I lead brand PR for IHG Hotels & Resorts across India, the Middle East & Africa, and South East Asia & Korea.
